Excerpt: . . . 47 are recognizably feeble-minded. 16 have a defect of gait which runs through the family and which is sex-limited. appearing, only in the male members of the family. One member of the family has been at Craig Colony for Epileptics, 10 have been in reformatories, 5 have been in almshouses 5 have been in orphan asylums, 3 have been inmates of prisons, 2 in insane asylums and 1 committed suicide. The personal history of the patient as given shows no inciting causes of sufficient importance to account for the appearance of epilepsy. On the father's side there is undoubtedly a nervous taint but the cases of epilepsy are not closely enough related to the patient to consider the trait inheritable. The patient's mother, however, belongs to a feeble-minded and neurotic strain and the result is a double heredity of defect.
