Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from The Jurassic Rocks of Britain, Vol. 3: The Lias of England and Wales (Yorkshire Excepted) In pursuance of the scheme for completing the Memoirs of the Geological Survey by the publication of stratigraphical monographs of the different geological formations of the British Isles, the task of describing the Jurassic system south of the Humber was entrusted to Mr, H.B. Woodward. The present volume, coming after the two by Mr. Fox-Strangways issued last year, forms the third volume of the Jurassic Monograph, and is the first instalment of Mr. Woodward s work. It is devoted to a detailed account of the Lias. Following out the general plan adopted for these Memoirs, Mr. Woodward has endeavoured to summarise our knowledge of the different subdivisions of the Lis, with especial reference to their stratigraphical variations and their economic products. He has availed himself not only of the information gathered by the officers of the Survey, but of the voluminous Liassic literature which has been published in this country, so as to present a compendium of what is at present known regarding the subject. In tracing the labours of those who preceded the detailed mapping of the-Survey, we may note with some interest that an original sketch-survey, on the one-inch Ordnance maps, was made by William Lonsdale between 1827 and 1836 over a great partof the area described in the present volume. This early pioneer in British Geology, following the outlines first given by William Smith, and proceeding from near Bath across the Cotteswold district made his way by a series of oblique traverses through the Midland Counties to the Humber. H. E. Strickland also mapped portions of the...
